MTA Metro-North Railroad is reducing late night Hudson Line train service after 9 PM on Friday, November 20, as workers building the New NY Bridge install 700-ton girder assemblies over the tracks at Tarrytown.

There are no schedule changes on Saturday morning.

Similar work will come on one more date in December. The exact date will be announced later by the New NY Bridge team.

For more information about the movement of the girder assemblies, or the New NY Bridge project overall, including fact sheets and video, please visit the New NY Bridge website, <http://www.newnybridge.com>.
